

Words really do matter. We want to be sure that what is heard is what we are actually trying to communicate - especially when we are talking about God. Do my words paint a clear and true picture of Him?

Sometimes the meaning of words change over time. Sometimes our culture today views words differently than their culture of origin. We must regularly ask ourselves if our meaning is being understood correctly.

Our list so far:

Church

God's House

Bless This Food

Disciple

Believe

What are some words or phrases that you struggle with or think we need to reconsider? How do you hear them or understand them? Let's work together, as iron sharpens iron, so as to communicate clearly, because we have been given the greatest news ever.

Share this:

- Click to share on Twitter \(Opens in new window\)
- Click to share on Facebook \(Opens in new window\)
- Click to share on Google+ \(Opens in new window\)